Instant Catalog Cards and Labels!

Imagine catalog cards and labels streaming from your dot matrix or daisy wheel printer. Even untrained volunteers can create perfectly punctuated AACR2 standard cards and labels in seconds. No more waiting, no high monthly subscription costs, just perfect cards, labels and reports when you want them for pennies each.

It's frustrating. If you depend on a card catalog you just can't get away from some original cataloging. Even if you buy printed cards or order cards through an on-line subscription service there are always cards to create for audio-visuals, prints, software, maps, etc. Unfortunately the creation of the least significant catalog card requires the talent of a highly trained person.

EXPERT RELIEF!

Although a catalog card is a humble three by five inches with fifteen lines of information, every line, indent, and punctuation mark is significant. And have you read the Anglo-American Cataloging Rules? A great aid to sleep. There are entire books written to interpret AACR2. In the past you needed an experienced cataloging librarian or a large computer to handle the complex rules of the AACR2 standard. But now you can take a break while even part-time staff or volunteers create hundreds or thousands of perfect AACR2 compatible catalog cards and labels with the incredible Librarian's Helper catalog and label program for personal computers.

EVEN A MANNEQUIN HAS A PRETTY FACE!

On the surface all card and label programs for personal computers look good. They all print on card stock using the same alphabet. They are all the same, aren't they? No way! This is like saying an experienced cataloger has the same abilities as a passer-by on the street. Both have ten fingers. Both, using a typewriter, can fill a three-by-five card with words. One has skill, the other is unskilled. Computer cataloging programs may also be thought of as skilled and unskilled.

We've been looking at cataloging software claims for years. We saw one company that promised to be totally AACR2-compatible -- as long as you entered the punctuation and indents correctly! A typewriter could make that claim. Another program could punctuate correctly between groups of entries but not between individual entries like a Title Proper and a Parallel Title. Get the idea? The only reason to buy this kind of software in the first place is to free up your overworked expert and allow you to enjoy the savings in time and expense. Running a labor intensive computer program is like running a chain saw manually.

SPEAKING OF POWER

The Librarian's Helper is powerful software. The program is filled to the brim with AACR2 rules. We've been filling it for five years. That's what you're buying, smarts. It accepts thirty-two different categories of data, just about everything you could think of putting on a catalog card. Since it accepts longer entries than other programs, Librarian's Helper is the choice of many government agencies and technical libraries. Because it handles author and title analytics, Librarian's Helper is the program of choice for many high school and university libraries. Since data entry fields may be removed from the prompting sequence by the user, Librarian's Helper is the favorite of many elementary schools and church libraries.

You guessed it. We are all things to all people. Our unique setup program allows you to customize the program to your computer, printer, and style of operation. Whether you print cards as you go or save them to print as a batch, whether you like four title main entry cards or no added entry cards, the choice is yours. The power is yours.

There's no way around it. Either you do the work or the computer does the work. The program must be "smart" enough and powerful enough to get the job done. If it isn't, don't waste your money. This is what Librarian's Helper is all about. It does your work. It saves your time. It saves you money.

BUT IS IT FRIENDLY?

Our users think it is. At shows we ask librarians to sit down and create cards without any prior instruction. You try it and be the judge yourself.

FREE DEMO DISK

But why take our word for it? Try it for yourself! Send us a copy of this ad along with your name and the name and address of your library and we will send you a free IBM-compatible demo disk and manual that is yours to keep. The demo contains a full working version of the program. It is just like the real program, except that when you actually print cards, all the cards print with James Smith as the author.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE!

If the message you are reading has convinced you that you have already made a mistake, take heart. It's not too late. You can still experience the power and user-friendliness of this very smart software. We'll buy your present program. Send us your original manual and disk and we will give you credit toward the purchase of Librarian's Helper in the amount of $50. What more can we do?

HOW MUCH IS IT?

We thought you would never ask. Librarian's Helper 5.0 sells for $250. It is available for IBM-compatibles, CP/M-compatibles and Apple computers with CP/M cards. CP/M cards for Apple IIe are available from us for $100. Upgrades to version 5.0 are $30.

There is also a Basic Version that does not store data or print reports. This version sells for $175.
